5. At the same meeting, the Vice-President corrected the draft agreed conclusions and the Council adopted them as corrected. The text read as follows:

¹ Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, 1997, Supplement No. 6 (E/1997/26).

"During its high-level segment, the Council carried out a comprehensive review of the theme 'Fostering an enabling environment for development: financial flows, including capital flows, investment and trade'. On 2 July, a stimulating dialogue was held with the Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund, the Director-General of the World Trade Organization, the Secretary-General of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, the Under-Secretary-General in charge of the economic and social departments of the Secretariat and the Vice-President of the World Bank. On 4 July, a panel discussion with a group of eminent persons from the business and academic worlds was also held.

"The Council took note of the World Economic and Social Survey, 1997 (E/1997/50 and corrigenda) and the report of the Secretary-General on the theme (E/1997/67).

"I. THE CONTEXT

"The Council considered the theme in the context of the current global economic environment. The overall world economic outlook is favourable. At the same time, growth is not spread widely enough and the gap between developed and developing countries remains unacceptably wide. For many countries, particularly the least developed and the African countries, the threat of marginalization is real. Many continue to suffer from slow economic growth or stagnation. Also, unemployment is at unacceptably high levels, not only in developing countries but also in developed countries and countries with economies in transition.

"Globalization is a fact and a dynamic force. It offers opportunities as well as risks. The global opportunities created by it must benefit all countries and the risks associated with it should be managed and minimized. This will require strengthened international cooperation as well as careful stewardship and sound policies.

"II. A FRAMEWORK FOR INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION AND NATIONAL POLICIES

"A. Strengthened international cooperation

"Each country has the primary responsibility for its own development. However, international cooperation and partnership have a vital role in creating a favourable climate in which capital flows, investment and trade can flourish.

"The broad elements of an enabling international environment for development include the creation and maintenance of stable international conditions; democratization in international relations in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations and international law; establishment of an open, rule-based, equitable, secure, non-discriminatory, transparent and predictable multilateral trading system; and support for the weakest and most vulnerable members of the international community through more favourable treatment in trade and finance.

"An enabling international environment for development calls for better integration of developing countries, in particular, the African countries and the least developed countries as well as landlocked developing countries, small island developing States and countries with economies in transition, into the world economy, which requires enhancing their capacity to become equal partners in the world economy. The international community should support national efforts for capacity-building in developing countries, including infrastructure and manpower development and research and development. South-South cooperation and technical assistance from developed countries are also essential elements in promoting capacity-building in developing countries.

"An enabling international environment also requires coordination of macroeconomic policies by the international community to foster conditions of stability, predictability and growth in the world economy, stable exchange rates, low interest rates and low fiscal deficits, as well as trade liberalization, more equitable access of developing countries to global markets, an increased flow of productive investments, technologies and knowledge to developing countries, and new and additional financial resources from all sources. It also calls for broadening and strengthening the participation of developing countries in international economic decision-making processes.

"International cooperation efforts should be intensified and strengthened towards the developing countries' endogenous capacity-building in science and technology. There is a need to promote, facilitate and finance, as appropriate, access and transfer of environmentally sound technologies and the corresponding know-how, in particular to developing countries on favourable terms, including concessional and preferential terms, as mutually agreed, taking into account the need to protect intellectual property rights as well as the special needs of developing countries.

"B. National policies

"Democracy, respect for all human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the right to development, transparent and accountable governance and administration in all sectors of society, and effective participation by civil society are an essential part of the necessary foundations for the realization of social and people-centred sustainable development. The empowerment of women and their full participation on the basis of equality in all spheres of society is fundamental for development.

"The development and maintenance of adequate economic and social infrastructure, in particular a trained workforce and telecommunications and transportation facilities, are essential for the integration of countries in the world economy and should be given priority and receive the full support of the international community. Innovative policies designed to promote public-private partnerships to meet the enormous demands in these areas also need to be pursued.

"An essential component of an enabling environment for development is sound national macroeconomic policies and the creation of favourable conditions for investment and increased domestic savings, including through the creation of a sound banking system. Governments must also provide for social and economic infrastructure development, basic social services and, in particular, the needs of women and children. People living in poverty should be assured access to micro-credit in order to enable them to undertake micro-enterprises, which in turn generate self-employment and contribute to achieving empowerment, especially of women. The strengthening of institutions supportive of micro-credit should therefore be encouraged.

"Many countries are undertaking structural adjustment and reform and are pursuing their outward-oriented policies. Their efforts need international support. Particular attention needs to be paid to integrating the social dimension in structural adjustment programmes to ensure equity and the empowerment of people living in poverty and of the disadvantaged and vulnerable groups in society.

"C. Role of the United Nations system

"The United Nations system, given its unique universal composition and reach, has a specific role to play in promoting an enabling environment for development. Through, inter alia, the recent cycle of international conferences, the United Nations has promoted agreements and understandings on policies and goals for development and has given further impetus to national action and international cooperation for development. The United Nations system must now promote effective implementation of the agreements reached by strengthening its normative and operational role in development.

"III. POLICY ISSUES

"A. Policy coherence

"With the accelerating integration of the world economy, the interaction between the macroeconomic, structural, trade, financial and development aspects of economic policy-making has increased and is likely to intensify further. In the current economic environment, the question of policy coherence has thus emerged as a critical one for all participants in the global economy. An important aspect of policy coherence that affects the international environment for developing countries is the need for greater coherence to maximize the impact of development cooperation. The United Nations, the Bretton Woods institutions, and WTO also need to provide coordinated support.

"There is a need for an international dialogue on issues of policy coherence. One of the Council's high-level meetings with the Bretton Woods institutions and WTO, called for under General Assembly resolution 50/227, should be devoted to this topic. Further study of these issues is required, including consideration by the Committee for Development Planning or its successor arrangements, in order to develop approaches and modalities that the Council could consider at a subsequent session.

"B. Marginalization

"Many developing countries were not able to benefit from the globalization of the world economy over the past decade. Effective measures are called for to assist in their integration into the world economy.

"The least developed countries face the greatest risk of marginalization. Many other countries in Africa, notably those south of the Sahara, are similarly challenged - they lack various elements of the physical, financial, human and institutional infrastructure necessary to enter and compete effectively in international markets. Structural difficulties also deter inflows of foreign direct investment (FDI) and, more generally, perpetuate the dependence on a few highly volatile exports. Domestic supply-side constraints seriously limit export capacity. In many cases, the difficulties are compounded by the heavy burden of external debt service, erosion of trade preferences, deterioration in the terms of trade, and decline in the overall level of official development assistance (ODA).

"Marginalization is also faced by the most vulnerable groups in all countries. Increased competition under a liberalized global economy therefore calls for greater concern for the promotion of an equitable distribution of income, greater access to resources through equity, and equality of opportunity for all. Globalization should be balanced by social progress through policies that encourage job-creating growth and ensure social safety nets.

"C. Official development assistance

"ODA remains an essential source of external funding. The overall decline in ODA is a cause for serious concern. Moreover, a significant proportion of ODA is for funding emergency relief, thereby affecting availability for long-term development needs.

"It is important to reverse the overall decline in ODA flows and to achieve internationally agreed ODA targets as soon as possible. Such assistance should focus on developing countries, with particular priority to Africa and the least developed countries. Some donor countries have achieved or exceeded the accepted United Nations targets to allocate 0.7 per cent of GNP for overall ODA and 0.15 per cent of GNP for ODA for the least developed countries and are encouraged to continue to do so. Other developed countries reaffirm the commitments undertaken to fulfil these targets as soon as possible. Countries that are in a position to do so should strive to augment their assistance in the framework of development cooperation. The statements made by some countries to increase ODA are welcome.

"The Council welcomes the decision of the IMF Interim Committee to make the Enhanced Structural Adjustment Facility (ESAF) a permanent facility. Further efforts are called for to ensure that internationally supported adjustment programmes, including ESAF-supported programmes, incorporate social safety measures and restructuring of public expenditure, including increases in expenditure related to primary education and primary health services, in line with the recommendations of the World Summit for Social Development. The speed and sequencing of these programmes and safeguards for social equity are critical for their success.

"In order that international financial facilities, particularly the International Development Association (IDA), have more positive effects on development, the commitments for their replenishment, including the eleventh replenishment of IDA, should be fully implemented in a timely manner. Contributions to multilateral financial facilities have fallen off. It is essential that multilateral aid disbursements are not disrupted but are maintained or increased.

"D. External debt

"One of the specific obstacles over the past decade to the development efforts of many developing countries, in particular those in Africa and the least developed countries, has been the heavy burden of external debt-servicing. Even with sound economic policies and the full application of the debt-rescheduling arrangements of the past few years, a number of countries continue to face an unsustainable level of external debt-servicing. Debt-service problems of middle-income countries should also continue to be addressed effectively.

"There is an urgent need for effective, equitable, development-oriented and durable solutions to the external debt and debt-servicing problems of developing countries, and to help them exit from the rescheduling process. The evolving debt strategy has contributed to the improvement in the debt situation of a number of developing countries. Debt-relief measures have been undertaken by creditor countries both within the framework of the Paris Club and through the cancellation of debts and equivalent relief of bilateral official debt.

"The international community, including the international financial institutions, is invited to continue to explore ways of implementing additional and innovative measures to alleviate substantially the debt burdens of developing countries, in particular of the highly indebted low-income countries, in order to help them to achieve sustained economic growth without falling into a new debt crisis.

"In this context, the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) Debt Initiative is welcomed. Its timely and speedy implementation is called for. The implementation of the Initiative requires additional financial resources from both bilateral and multilateral creditors without affecting the support required for development activities of developing countries. The urgent need is stressed for developed countries to give the Initiative the support it both needs and deserves and to implement it flexibly to ensure that the performance already achieved is taken into account in determining the duration of adjustment required to reach, with the assistance of all creditors, an exit from debt rescheduling. The importance of implementing the Initiative's eligibility criteria flexibly, in a transparent manner and with the full involvement of the debtor country, and of continuously evaluating and actively monitoring the implications of the existing terms of the eligibility criteria in the implementation of the Initiative, so as to ensure sufficient coverage of heavily indebted poor countries, are also stressed.

"E. Volatility and vulnerability

"The increased integration of the world economy has the potential for increased volatility, particularly in international financial markets. The volatility in prices of primary commodities, interest rates and exchange rates has a disproportionate impact on developing countries. Integration of financial markets also tends to increase the downside risk of a sudden reversal of financial flows for an individual country, as well as the possibility of spillover effects on others.

"The dramatic increase in capital flows to emerging markets has contributed to sustained economic growth, but it has also complicated macroeconomic management. Sound macroeconomic policies remain an essential ingredient to prevent volatility, but speculative capital movements can threaten the stability of countries.

"The prevention of financial crises will require enhanced early warning mechanisms, including improved and effective surveillance of national and international financial markets. It will also require that multilateral institutions have the capacity to respond in a quick and coordinated fashion to potential crises. IMF is encouraged to fully exercise its role of overseeing the international monetary system to ensure its effective operation. In this regard, the efforts undertaken since 1995 to strengthen surveillance, to ensure that IMF is better equipped to identify emerging crises at an early stage and to facilitate its rapid response to such crises are welcomed.

"It is recognized that there is a need to strengthen international cooperation and consultation to prevent spillover effects of crises associated with the volatility of financial flows. International action is required to improve and coordinate regulatory frameworks for international financial transactions.

"The importance of ensuring that IMF has sufficient resources to assist its members is underlined. In this connection, the timely conclusion of the general review of quotas is encouraged. Potential participants are called upon to ensure that the 'New Arrangements to Borrow' become effective as soon as possible.

"F. Foreign direct investment

"Most developing countries have liberalized their FDI alongside their trade regimes. Although most FDI and portfolio capital still flow to industrialized countries, an increasing proportion is going to developing countries. However, FDI and portfolio flows are highly concentrated, mostly in parts of Asia and Latin America. In recent years, Africa has received only a very small part of total net private flows despite extensive reforms that continue to be implemented.

"The growth in FDI in developing countries is of particular importance. A challenge to the international community in contributing to an enabling environment for development lies in encouraging capital and investment flows across a broader range of developing countries.

"FDI plays an increasingly important role in countries with economies in transition. These countries would benefit more if the structure of FDI better reflected the need for investments in the productive and export sectors of their economies. Creating a favourable investment climate would facilitate this aim.

"In the light of the increasing importance of foreign direct investment in the world economy, the Council notes that UNCTAD, WTO and the other organizations concerned are studying the relationship between trade and investment.

"G. Trade and commodities

"An open, rule-based, equitable, secure, non-discriminatory, transparent and predictable multilateral trading system is a key element in fostering an enabling environment for development and is also essential for deepening the flow of technology and information around the world. There is a need to promote the universality of WTO and to facilitate the admission, in an expeditious manner, of developing countries and countries with economies in transition that apply for membership, through transparent implementation of the relevant WTO provisions in this regard.

"Trade liberalization should eliminate discriminatory and protectionist practices in international trade relations. This will have the effect of improving access for the exports of developing countries and should cover access to technology, distribution channels and information networks. With the growing internationalization of the services sector, further action should be taken to facilitate the participation of developing countries in international service liberalization.

"The importance of fully and expeditiously implementing the Marrakesh Declaration, the Ministerial Decision on Measures in Favour of Least Developed Countries and the Ministerial Decision on Measures Concerning the Possible Negative Effects of the Reform Programme on Least Developed and Net Food-Importing Developing Countries is stressed.

"Commodity exports continue to play a key role in the economies of many developing countries. Diversification of their economies is essential for their development. The international community should endeavour to improve the functioning of commodity markets with greater transparency and more stable and predictable conditions and should provide greater access to the export products of those countries.

"Continuing concerted action is needed to remove lingering, disguised and other obstacles to free and open trade. The liberalization of trade regimes and the promotion of an open and secure multilateral trading system are central requirements for the promotion of economic development. All countries have a shared interest in an open, rule-based, equitable, non-discriminatory, transparent and predictable multilateral trading system. All countries should commit themselves to the liberalization of trade and investment policies and should foster international cooperation towards this goal. Without prejudice to the clear understanding in WTO that future negotiations, if any, regarding a multilateral agreement on investment will take place only after an explicit consensus decision, future agreements on investments should take into account the objectives of sustainable development, and when developing countries are parties to these agreements, special attention should be given to their need for investment. The Uruguay Round Agreements provide the framework for an open, rule-based, equitable, secure, non-discriminatory, transparent and predictable multilateral trading system. All members of WTO should implement their commitments fully and all provisions of the Final Act of the Uruguay Round should be effectively applied to maximize economic growth and development benefits for all, taking into account the specific interests of developing countries. The full realization of the anticipated benefits from the conclusion of the Uruguay Round also requires that confidence in the integrity and credibility of the multilateral trading system be upheld. In this respect, the WTO dispute settlement mechanism is a key element of the credibility of the multilateral trading system. It is essential for all countries to respect and fulfil the totality of the undertakings of the Uruguay Round. Unilateral actions of a protectionist nature, inconsistent with multilateral trade agreements, should be avoided and prevented. Appropriate monitoring measures should continue to ensure that, in the implementation of the Uruguay Round, the rights, interests and concerns of all countries are protected, recognized and addressed. In this context, the importance of continuing and intensifying the international dialogue on issues of interest for developing countries, in particular the least developed countries among them, in appropriate forums, is recognized.

"The strengthening of the supply capacity of exportable goods and services in the least developed countries, as well as market access, is called for. The Council encourages the United Nations system, including IMF and the World Bank, WTO and UNDP, to provide coordinated support for action in this area. It urges all countries to participate in the forthcoming High-Level Meeting on Integrated Initiatives for Least Developed Countries, organized by WTO, UNCTAD, the International Trade Centre, the World Bank and IMF, which is to be held on 27 and 28 October 1997."

2. At its substantive session, the Council considered the question of coordination of activities on a system-wide basis: funding for operational activities for development: implementation of General Assembly resolution 50/227 (agenda item 3 (a)) at its 6th to 9th meetings, from 30 June to 1 July 1997. An account of the discussion is contained in the relevant summary records (E/1997/SR.6-9). The Council had before it the following documents:

ACTION TAKEN BY THE COUNCIL

5. Under agenda item 3 (b), the Council adopted resolution 1997/59.

Operational activities of the United Nations for international development cooperation: follow-up to policy recommendations of the General Assembly

6. At the 23rd meeting, on 11 July, the observer for the United Republic of Tanzania*, on behalf of the States Members of the United Nations that are members of the Group of 77 and China, introduced a draft resolution (E/1997/L.27) entitled "Operational activities of the United Nations for international development cooperation: follow-up to policy recommendations of the General Assembly", which read as follows:

"The Economic and Social Council,

"Recalling General Assembly resolutions 50/120 of 20 December 1995 on the triennial policy review of operational activities for development of the United Nations system and 50/227 of 24 May 1995 on further measures for the restructuring and revitalization of the United Nations in the economic, social, and related fields, and Economic and Social Council resolution 1996/42 of 26 July 1996,

Recalling also that, in order to fulfil its coordination role, and in accordance with the policies formulated by the Assembly, the Council should consider, on an annual basis in the operational activities segment, the overall financial situation of the United Nations funds and programmes, particularly the contributions from developed countries to core resources, and make specific recommendations thereon on enhancing such contributions,

"Reaffirming that operational activities for development within the United Nations system have a critical and unique role to play in enabling developing countries to continue to take a lead role in the management of their own development process and that the funds and programmes constitute important vehicles for advancing international development cooperation,

"Noting with regret that, although significant progress has already been made on the restructuring and rationalization of the governance and functioning of the United Nations development funds and programmes, there has not been, as part of the overall reform process, any substantial increase in resources for operational activities for development on a predictable, continuous and assured basis, nor have the consultations on prospective new modalities for financing reached a conclusion,

"Gravely concerned that the persistent insufficiency and decline of resources for operational activities for development, in particular of core resources, is seriously affecting the priorities and the capacity of the United Nations funds and programmes to carry out their functions and to respond effectively to the increasing needs of all developing countries, as well as seriously eroding their fundamental mandates and characteristics, particularly their universal and multilateral character,

* In accordance with rule 72 of the rules of procedure of the Economic and Social Council.

"Stressing that the fundamental characteristics of the operational activities of the United Nations system should be, inter alia, their universal, voluntary and grant nature, their neutrality and their multilateralism, as well as their ability to respond to the needs of developing countries in a flexible manner, and that the operational activities of the United Nations system are carried out for the benefit of the developing countries, at the request of those countries and in accordance with their own policies and priorities for development,

"Recognizing the urgent and specific needs of the low-income countries, in particular the least developed countries,

"Noting with appreciation the sustained contributions of some donors and recipient countries to the operational activities for development in a spirit of partnership and the recently expressed willingness of some donors to increase their contribution to the funds and programmes,

"Reaffirming that capacity-building and its sustainability are an essential element for operational activities of the United Nations systems at the country level, which should be country-led and country-driven,

"Noting that Assembly resolution 50/120 provides an opportunity to review all aspects of operational activities, including the resident coordinator system,

"1. Takes note of the reports of the United Nations funds and programmes;

I

"2. Strongly reaffirms that the efficiency, effectiveness and impact of the operational activities of the United Nations system must be enhanced by, inter alia, a substantial increase in their funding on a predictable, continuous and assured basis, commensurate with the increasing needs of developing countries, through the full implementation of General Assembly resolutions 47/199 of 22 December 1992, 48/162, 50/120 and 50/227;

"3. Stresses that intergovernmental discussion in the General Assembly, including the fifty-second session, and in the Economic and Social Council is essential to defining an international consensus on any measures that are contemplated to enhance the efficiency and functions of the United Nations funds and programmes;

"4. Urges the developed countries, in particular those countries whose overall performance is not commensurate with their capacity, taking into account established official development assistance targets and their current level of contribution, to increase substantially their official development assistance, including contributions to the operational activities of the United Nations system and for the effective implementation of the outcomes of the major United Nations international conferences;

"5. Recommends that the Executive Boards of the United Nations funds and programmes review and monitor, as a matter of priority and within the context of their regular meetings, their funding schemes, particularly of core resources, with a view to meeting their agreed upon target, reflecting the priorities and needs of programme countries, and increasing the target for voluntary contributions from official sources from the developed countries as the main source for funding of operational activities for the programming cycles, including the present cycle;

"6. Requests the Secretary-General to include in the report requested in paragraph 17 of Assembly resolution 50/227 proposals for increasing funding for operational activities for development on a predictable, continuous and assured basis, with a view to allowing the resumption during the fifty-second session of the Assembly substantive discussion on new modalities for funding of operational activities for development;

"7. Decides to continue examining during the operational activities segment of its substantive session of 1998 the issue of funding for operational activities of the United Nations system;

II

"8. Reaffirms that the objective of capacity-building and its sustainability should continue to be an essential part of the operational activities of the United Nations system at the country level and should be country-driven, situation specific and consistent with national development plans and priorities, with the programmatic approach;

"9. Emphasizes that capacity building should aim at strengthening national execution, particularly in institutional and human resource development, with a view to enhancing local ownership and management of the development process, utilizing available local capacities and expertise;

"10. Requests the United Nations Funds and Programmes to continue to provide support to the resident coordinator system as provided in Assembly resolution 50/120."

7. At the 41st meeting, on 24 July, the Vice-President of the Council, Mr. Anwarul Karim Chowdhury (Bangladesh), introduced a draft resolution (E/1997/L.53), submitted on the basis of informal consultations held on draft resolution E/1997/L.27.

8. At the same meeting, the Council adopted draft resolution E/1997/L.53. See Council resolution 1997/59.

9. After the draft resolution was adopted, a statement was made by the representative of the United States of America (see E/1997/SR.41).

10. In the light of the adoption of draft resolution E/1997/L.53, draft resolution E/1997/L.27 was withdrawn by its sponsor.

C. Reports of the Executive Boards of the United Nations Development Programme/United Nations Population Fund, the United Nations Children's Fund and the World Food Programme

Chapter IV

COORDINATION SEGMENT

COORDINATION OF THE POLICIES AND ACTIVITIES OF THE SPECIALIZED AGENCIES AND OTHER BODIES OF THE UNITED NATIONS SYSTEM

A. Mainstreaming the gender perspective into all policies and programmes in the United Nations system

1. At its substantive session, the Council held a panel discussion on mainstreaming the gender perspective into all policies and programmes in the United Nations system (agenda item 4 (a) at its 20th meeting on 9 July 1997. The participants included the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the Associate Administrator of the United Nations Development Programme, the Executive Director of the World Food Programme, the Deputy Executive Director of the United Nations Population Fund and the Deputy Director-General of the International Labour Organization. The Special Adviser on Gender Issues and Advancement of Women served as moderator. An account of the discussion is contained in the relevant summary record (E/1997/SR.20).

2. The Council continued its consideration of the item at its 21st, 22nd, 31st and 33rd meetings, on 9, 10, 17 and 18 July. An account of the discussion is contained in the relevant summary records (E/1997/SR.21, 22, 31 and 33). The Council had before it the following documents:

- (a) Report of the Secretary-General on mainstreaming the gender perspective into all policies and programmes in the United Nations system (E/1997/66);
- (b) Note by the Secretariat containing Commission on the Status of Women resolution 41/6, entitled "Mainstreaming the gender perspective into all policies and programmes in the United Nations system" (E/1997/94);
- (c) Statement submitted by the Inter-Parliamentary Union, a non-governmental organization in general consultative status with the Economic and Social Council (E/1997/NGO/1).

ACTION TAKEN BY THE COUNCIL

3. At the 31st meeting, on 17 July, the Vice-President of the Council, Mr. Gerhard Henze (Germany), introduced the draft agreed conclusions (E/1997/L.30) on mainstreaming the gender perspective into all policies and programmes in the United Nations system.

4. At the 33rd meeting, on 18 July, the Council adopted the draft agreed conclusions. The text read as follows:

Agreed conclusions 1997/2

"The Economic and Social Council takes note with appreciation of the report of the Secretary-General on the coordination of United Nations system activities for mainstreaming a gender perspective into all policies and programmes of the United Nations system (E/1997/66).

"States unanimously agreed at the Fourth World Conference on Women, held at Beijing in 1995, that it was essential to design, implement and monitor, with the full participation of women, effective, efficient and mutually reinforcing gender-sensitive policies and programmes, including development policies and programmes at all levels, to foster the empowerment and advancement of women. In order to ensure effective implementation of the strategic objectives of the Beijing Platform for Action,¹ the United Nations system should promote an active and visible policy of mainstreaming a gender perspective.

"In recognition of the fact that a gender perspective has not yet been fully integrated into the mainstream of United Nations activities, the Council wishes to promote a coordinated and coherent policy of gender mainstreaming by further clarifying the concept of mainstreaming and the central principles associated with it as well as by addressing specific recommendations to all actors within the United Nations system.

"I. CONCEPTS AND PRINCIPLES

"A. Definition of the concept of gender mainstreaming

"Mainstreaming a gender perspective is the process of assessing the implications for women and men of any planned action, including legislation, policies or programmes, in all areas and at all levels. It is a strategy for making women's as well as men's concerns and experiences an integral dimension of the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of policies and programmes in all political, economic and societal spheres so that women and men benefit equally and inequality is not perpetuated. The ultimate goal is to achieve gender equality.

"B. Principles for mainstreaming a gender perspective in the United Nations system "Issues across all areas of activity should be defined in such a manner that gender differences can be diagnosed - that is, an assumption of gender-neutrality should not be made.

"Responsibility for translating gender mainstreaming into practice is system-wide and rests at the highest levels. Accountability for outcomes needs to be monitored constantly.

"Gender mainstreaming also requires that every effort be made to broaden women's participation at all levels of decision-making.

"Gender mainstreaming must be institutionalized through concrete steps, mechanisms and processes in all parts of the United Nations system.

"Gender mainstreaming does not replace the need for targeted, women-specific policies and programmes or positive legislation, nor does it substitute for gender units or focal points.

¹ Report of the Fourth World Conference on Women, Beijing, 4-15 September 1995 (United Nations publication, Sales No. E.96.IV.13), chap. I, resolution 1, annex II.

"Clear political will and the allocation of adequate and, if need be, additional human and financial resources for gender mainstreaming from all available funding sources are important for the successful translation of the concept into practice.

"III. SPECIFIC RECOMMENDATIONS FOR GENDER MAINSTREAMING IN THE UNITED NATIONS SYSTEM

"The Economic and Social Council highlights the importance of undertaking immediate and concrete steps to mainstream a gender perspective, including the implementation of the present recommendations as a matter of urgency and at the latest by the time of the five-year review of the Beijing Platform for Action in 2000.

"A. The intergovernmental process of the United Nations

"The Council encourages the General Assembly to direct all of its committees and bodies and draw the attention of other bodies of the United Nations system to the need to mainstream a gender perspective systematically into all areas of their work, in particular in such areas as macroeconomic questions, operational activities for development, poverty eradication, human rights, humanitarian assistance, budgeting, disarmament, peace and security, and legal and political matters, taking full advantage of the outcome of the work of the Commission on the Status of Women.

"All bodies that deal with programme and budgetary matters, including the Committee for Programme and Coordination, should ensure that all programmes visibly mainstream a gender perspective.

"Other intergovernmental bodies with similar responsibilities in the United Nations system - for instance, the governing bodies of the United Nations Development Programme/United Nations Population Fund, the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, the World Food Programme, the United Nations Children's Fund, the Programme of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and the specialized agencies - are encouraged to monitor the way in which the concerned agencies, funds and programmes implement gender mainstreaming in their respective medium-term plans and programme budgets, including at the field level.

"The Council will take steps to strengthen its harmonization and coordination of the work programmes of the functional commissions, as well as the interaction between the Council, the functional commissions and other subsidiary bodies, to accelerate gender mainstreaming. To this end, the Council entrusts its bureau with establishing or strengthening a dialogue with the chairpersons and bureaux of those bodies, as well as a dialogue between them, with the active support of the chairperson and bureau of the Commission on the Status of Women.

"The Council calls upon all of its functional commissions and subsidiary bodies to mainstream a gender perspective in their work, and in this regard:

"(a) To adopt, as a first step, an explicit decision on mainstreaming a gender perspective in their work;

"(b) To make maximum use of the agreed conclusions of the Commission on the Status of Women on the 12 critical areas of concern when monitoring implementation of global conferences with regard to related topics at the national and international levels;

"(c) To take into account the work of the Commission on the Status of Women and the Commission on Human Rights in the area of enjoyment of human rights by women.

"The Commission on the Status of Women is urged:

"(a) To provide suggestions to other functional commissions and the Council on gender mainstreaming;

"(b) To use the work of other functional commissions as it relates to the 12 critical areas of concern in the Beijing Platform for Action - for example, in 1998, that of the Commission on Human Rights and, in 1999, that of the Commission on Population and Development - in dealing with priority themes.

"Regional commissions are requested to assume a catalytic role in exchanging experiences and best practices as well as promoting cooperation in gender mainstreaming on a regional level.

"The Secretariat is requested to present issues and approaches in a gender-sensitive manner when preparing reports so as to provide the intergovernmental machinery with an analytical basis for gender-responsive policy formulation and to ensure that the intergovernmental machinery is made aware of the decisions and recommendations of other relevant bodies in relation to gender mainstreaming.

"Under an item entitled 'Integrated follow-up of major United Nations conferences', the Council will monitor annually the way in which its functional commissions and subsidiary bodies mainstream a gender perspective on the basis of the report on the follow-up to the Fourth World Conference on Women.

"B. Institutional requirements for gender mainstreaming in all policies and programmes

"The Council welcomes the Secretary-General's commitment to mainstreaming a gender perspective and encourages him to demand accountability from senior managers for gender mainstreaming; in this regard, the Special Adviser on Gender Issues and Advancement of Women is encouraged to continue to fulfil her important role.

"In the ongoing reform process within the United Nations system, inter alia, in the work of the executive committees, the systemic integration of a gender perspective should be ensured.

"The Council encourages the efforts of the Administrative Committee on Coordination (ACC) to develop a mission statement on gender mainstreaming and trusts that such a statement will send a clear and concrete message to the system and will be applicable system-wide.

"The heads of the specialized agencies are encouraged to establish accountability of senior managers for gender mainstreaming.

"All entities of the United Nations system, making full use of the expertise and support of gender units or focal points - the Division for the Advancement of Women of the Secretariat, the United Nations Development Fund for Women (UNIFEM), the International Research and Training Institute for the Advancement of Women (INSTRAW) and the Inter-Agency Committee on Women and Gender Equality - should institutionalize mainstreaming of a gender perspective at all levels through specific steps, including:

"(a) The adoption of gender mainstreaming policies and the formulation of specific mainstreaming strategies for sectoral areas;

"(b) The use of institutional directives rather than discretionary guidelines for gender mainstreaming;

"(c) The improvement of tools for gender mainstreaming, such as gender analysis, the use of data disaggregated by sex and age and sector-specific gender surveys, as well as gender-sensitive studies, guidelines and checklists for programming;

"(d) The establishment of instruments and mechanisms for monitoring and evaluation, such as gender-impact analysis methodologies;

"(e) The creation of accountability mechanisms for gender mainstreaming.

"United Nations funds and programmes and specialized agencies should ensure that, on the basis of gender analysis, gender concerns are addressed in all planning activities when setting priorities, allocating resources and identifying actions and activities. The funds, programmes and agencies should also be requested to include an assessment of the steps taken to translate gender mainstreaming into country programmes and projects in their reports to the Council at its operational activities segment.

"All entities of the United Nations system should institute mechanisms for gender mainstreaming in their planning and programming, for example, through participation of gender specialists in these processes. Administrative procedures should be adapted to include accountability mechanisms, ensuring that a gender analysis has been conducted and its results reflected in the respective activity.

"The Council will assess the extent to which a gender perspective is being applied through institutional directives for planning and programming, in preparation of the comprehensive review of the system-wide medium-term plan for the advancement of women, 1996-2001.

"The Inter-Agency Committee on Women and Gender Equality, the Division for the Advancement of Women, INSTRAW and UNIFEM, in their advocacy and advisory roles, should better coordinate their support and catalytic activities for gender mainstreaming and should identify and develop joint activities and work plans in appropriate areas. The annual reports of INSTRAW and UNIFEM should be made available to the Commission on the Status of Women for information.

"C. The role of gender units and focal points in gender mainstreaming

"The location, seniority level, resources and participation of gender units/focal points in all policy-making and programming processes and support at the most senior management and decision-making levels are also crucial in translating the gender mainstreaming mandate into practical reality. The role of such gender specialists in all areas, including the economic and social fields, human rights and the political, humanitarian, peace and security areas, should be strengthened.

"The responsibilities of gender units and focal points should include:

"(a) Support for the development of gender-sensitive policies and programme strategies;

"(b) Advice and support of staff in applying a gender perspective, in particular in the follow-up to United Nations conferences;

"(c) Development of tools and methodologies for gender mainstreaming;

"(d) Collection and dissemination of information on gender issues and on best practices;

"(e) Assistance in monitoring and evaluating progress in gender mainstreaming in policy, programme and budgetary terms.

"At the field level, United Nations gender units and focal points should:

"(a) Provide guidance to the entities of the United Nations system on gender mainstreaming in the integrated follow-up to conferences across different sectoral areas;

"(b) In this regard, network with national machinery for the advancement of women and with all non-governmental organizations, in particular women's non-governmental organizations.

"D. Capacity-building for gender mainstreaming

"To enhance system-wide gender sensitivity and gender expertise through training as a priority for gender mainstreaming, all entities of the United Nations system should:

"(a) Integrate a gender perspective into all training programmes;

"(b) Provide continuous gender training for all staff, including those at the highest levels;

"(c) Provide special training for gender experts to enhance their skills;

"(d) Ensure that specialized gender expertise is available to them;

"(e) Coordinate their training efforts through a system-wide evaluation of the impact of gender-training.

"The relevant agencies, funds and programmes of the United Nations system should consider making arrangements and, if necessary, drawing up additional protocols to existing memoranda of understanding in order to mainstream a gender perspective in inter-agency partnerships and in cooperation agreements with intergovernmental organizations.

"To strengthen capacities for the collection, evaluation and exchange of gender-related information, a coordinated, system-wide effort under the leadership of the main coordinators for specific areas is needed for the development and systematic usage of, inter alia:

"(a) Gender-disaggregated statistics and indicators;

"(b) Proposals for treaty bodies and States on how to use statistics, including gender-disaggregated data, in reporting on and monitoring all relevant treaties in order to integrate a gender perspective;

"(c) Non-numerical indicators to monitor gender mainstreaming;

"(d) Electronic networks for information exchange on gender mainstreaming, such as WomenWatch;

"(e) Gender-sensitive public information activities and materials in all thematic areas.

"Gender balance is another central goal. It is recommended that the General Assembly and the Commission on the Status of Women be regularly provided with statistics on the number and percentage of women at all levels throughout the whole United Nations system. The Council reaffirms the goal of a 50/50 gender distribution by the year 2000 within the United Nations system, especially at the D-1 level and above, with full respect for the principle of equitable geographical distribution, in conformity with Article 101 of the Charter of the United Nations, also taking into account the lack of representation or the under-representation of certain countries. The ACC Consultative Committee on Administrative Questions and the International Civil Service Commission should monitor progress in staffing policies aimed at achieving gender balance.

"Capacity-building also requires the collection and sharing of best practices and lessons learned within the United Nations system and at the national level, including successful national initiatives:

"(a) The Inter-Agency Committee on Women and Gender Equality is encouraged to develop a standardized format for documenting and assessing gender-mainstreaming experiences in all areas of work, such as social and economic development, macroeconomic questions, operational activities for development, poverty eradication, human rights, humanitarian assistance, budgeting, disarmament, peace and security, and legal and political matters, including training and capacity-building;

"(b) The practice of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women, in cooperating and collaborating with other treaty-monitoring bodies, should serve as a good example of the mainstreaming of a gender perspective throughout the United Nations system;

"(c) At the field level, United Nations operational entities, with support from gender experts and coordinated by inter-agency committees, should develop and share memoranda of understanding on gender equality goals in programme development and project implementation.

"The Division for the Advancement of Women, acting as the secretariat of the Commission on the Status of Women, should play an especially active role in generating new ideas, proposing practical suggestions and promoting constructive implementation of gender mainstreaming.

"Capacity-building further requires recognizing the importance of working with national commissions, national institutions for the advancement of women and non-governmental organizations, in particular women's non-governmental organizations, and developing partnerships with them.

"Accountability structures for gender mainstreaming need to be introduced or strengthened through institutional mechanisms and management culture. In this regard, the Inter-Agency Committee on Women and Gender Equality is encouraged:

"(a) To prepare a catalogue of accountability measures, including performance indicators, to monitor and evaluate progress in gender mainstreaming on both the programmatic and resource side;

"(b) To establish a baseline for gender mainstreaming performance by identifying a number of core indicators to be used in all departments and entities;

"(c) To report regularly thereon, inter alia, to the Commission on the Status of Women.

E. Gender mainstreaming in the integrated follow-up to global United Nations conferences

"In order to facilitate gender mainstreaming in the integrated follow-up, review and appraisal of global United Nations conferences, the Council urges all entities of the United Nations system to:

"(a) Apply a gender perspective to all conference follow-up and, where appropriate, adjust their implementation activities accordingly, including through targeted, women-specific projects;

"(b) To utilize gender analysis effectively to identify the differential impact of implementation on women and men and to guide implementation towards gender equality.

"The resident coordinator should play a primary role in developing a coherent approach to gender mainstreaming in United Nations activities on conference follow-up at the field level, inter alia, through country strategy notes where these exist. Close cooperation between the resident coordinator, UNIFEM regional programme advisers, UNDP gender focal points and other United Nations agencies, funds and programmes should be ensured.

"All United Nations gender experts/focal points at the field level, including the UNIFEM regional programme advisers, should:

"(a) Establish a policy dialogue within sectoral areas to identify areas of commonality and complementarity between the critical areas of concern identified in the Beijing Platform for Action and the results of other United Nations conferences;

"(b) Facilitate linkages between national machineries for the advancement of women and all non-governmental organizations, in particular women's non-governmental organizations, and the institutions and processes engaged in implementation of United Nations conferences.

"Enhanced interaction among the Division for the Advancement of Women, INSTRAW, UNIFEM and national machineries for the advancement of women, such as national commissions, national institutions and all non-governmental organizations, in particular women's non-governmental organizations and relevant research institutes, should be pursued."

B. Freshwater, including clean and safe water supply and sanitation

5. The Council considered the question of freshwater, including clean and safe water supply and sanitation (agenda item 4 (b)) at its 23rd, 24th, 33rd and 35th meetings, on 11, 18 and 21 July 1997. An account of the discussion is contained in the relevant summary records (E/1997/SR.23, 24, 33 and 35). The Council had before it the report of the Secretary-General on freshwater, including clean and safe water supply and sanitation (E/1997/70).

ACTION TAKEN BY THE COUNCIL

6. At the 33rd meeting, on 18 July, the Vice-President of the Council, Mr. Gerhard Walter Henze (Germany), introduced the draft agreed conclusions on freshwater, including clean and safe water supply and sanitation (E/1997/L.40).

7. At the 35th meeting, on 21 July, the Council adopted the draft agreed conclusions, as corrected during the discussion. The text read as follows:

Agreed conclusions 1997/3

"The Economic and Social Council takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on freshwater, including clean and safe water supply and sanitation (E/1997/70) and of the suggestions contained in it for enhancing coordination and cooperation among the organizations of the United Nations system in the field of water resources.

"The Council notes with great concern that more than one fifth of the world's population does not have access to safe drinking water and more than half of humanity lacks adequate sanitation. It reiterates its recommendation² that the organizations of the United Nations system should assign high priority to strengthening their activities and cooperation in these areas of endeavour.

"The Council notes that the Commission on Sustainable Development, at its fifth session, and the General Assembly, at its nineteenth special session, looked upon water resources as an issue requiring high priority. The Council welcomes resolution 5-19/2, adopted by the General Assembly at its nineteenth special session, by which the Assembly, building on existing principles and instruments, arrangements and programmes of action called for 'a dialogue under the aegis of the Commission on Sustainable Development, beginning at its sixth session, aimed at building a consensus on the necessary actions, and in particular, on the means of implementation and on tangible results, in order to consider initiating a strategic approach for the implementation of all aspects of the sustainable use of freshwater for social and economic purposes, including, inter alia, safe drinking water and sanitation, water for irrigation, recycling and waste-water management, and the important role freshwater plays in natural ecosystems'.³ The General Assembly further stated that 'this intergovernmental process will be fully fruitful only if there is a proved commitment by the international community to the provision of new and additional financial resources for the goals of this initiative'.³ The Council stresses the importance of the role of the Commission on Sustainable Development concerning all matters related to the sustainable development of water resources.

"The Economic and Social Council takes note of existing arrangements for cooperation and coordination through the Administrative Committee on Coordination (ACC) Subcommittee on Water Resources and other arrangements among specific organizations and recommends that they take further steps towards streamlining their programme and activities. The Council urges the ACC Subcommittee to analyse in detail the activities that are currently being carried out by the organizations of the system and their interrelationship and to prepare a report on the subject by the end of 1997. The report would be a useful input into the preparatory process leading up to the sixth session of the Commission on Sustainable Development. The Council further recommends that the regional commissions take measures to enhance their participation at the sessions of the ACC Subcommittee on Water Resources in order to provide the necessary regional perspectives to the work of the Subcommittee.

"The Economic and Social Council stresses the seriousness of the capacity-building problem in developing countries and urges the organizations of the United Nations system to assign high priority to programmes and activities geared to the provision of support in this respect. It takes note of the conclusion of the comprehensive assessment of the freshwater resources of the world (E/CN.17/1997/9), submitted to the Commission on Sustainable Development at its fifth session, to the effect that the capability of providing accurate data on water quantity and quality is sorely lacking in the majority of countries and that, despite the existence of important programmes, international support efforts concerning information management remains fragmented and incomplete. The Council welcomes the recommendation by the General Assembly, at its nineteenth special session, 'to strengthen the capability of Governments and international institutions to collect and manage information, including scientific, social and environmental data, in order to facilitate the integrated assessment and management of water resources, and foster regional and international cooperation for information dissemination and exchange through cooperative approaches among United Nations institutions, including the United Nations Environment Programme, and centres of environmental excellence. In this regard, technical assistance to developing countries will continue to be important'.⁴ The Council also considers that, owing to the lack of data in both developed and developing countries, there is a need for an update and reassessment of the water resources of the world. Given the seriousness of the situation concerning the effect of the disposal of toxic substances, including arsenic contamination of drinking water supplies, and of persistent organic pollutants upon water resources, the Council recommends that close attention be given to these issues. The work of the organizations of the United Nations system must be carried out taking into account chapter 18 and other relevant chapters of Agenda 21.⁵
